

THE PORTLAND ART MUSEUM PODCAST

The Portland Art Museum is pleased to announce a brand new audio series featuring stories generated by the broader Museum community—artists, partners, visitors, educators, and more. The Museum invites anyone to suggest an idea for an episode and help bring it to life. The inaugural episodes feature complete audio interviews with the eight artists from the map is not the territory, hosted by Grace Kook-Anderson, the Arlene and Harold Schnitzer Curator of Northwest Art.

In an effort to reflect the widest possible scope of perspectives, the voices in the Podcast will almost always be different, and could even include you. This new podcast launched the same day the Museum won a podcast award from XRAY.FM for Reflections on Common Ground, a podcast series partnership with Portland Meet Portland that was released in collaboration with Common Gound: Photographs by Fazal Sheikh, 1989–2013 in May 2018. You can listen to the Portland Art Museum podcast at portlandartmuseum.org/podcast or on your favorite podcast app.

Have an idea for the Museum podcast? Submit your idea at pam.to/podcastidea

TOP: Reflections on Common Ground podcast recording with Portland Meet Portland during the Miller Family Free Day, 2018; LEFT: Jon Richardson (right) with Kristin Bayans (left) receiving the XRAY.FM Vigilant Awareness Award.